To Whom It May Concern,

It is with great pleasure that I write this letter in support of Sanzhar Tokkozhin, who has been serving as my teaching assistant for the "Modern Methods of Data Science and Machine Learning" course at HSE University. I have had the opportunity to work closely with Sanzhar over the past academic year, and I have been consistently impressed by his professionalism, work ethic, and intellectual curiosity.

Sanzhar has been an integral part of the course, contributing not only in terms of logistical support but also through his deep understanding of the course material. He consistently demonstrated the ability to tackle complex machine learning algorithms and data analysis methods, while also helping students grasp challenging concepts. Sanzhar was often the go-to person for students when they needed clarification on key topics, and he always made sure to explain these concepts in a clear and understandable manner.

In addition to his technical proficiency, Sanzhar displayed strong organizational and leadership abilities. He was responsible for organizing study sessions, assisting with grad-ing assignments, and ensuring that the practical sessions ran smoothly. His ability to manage multiple tasks while maintaining a high standard of work is a testament to his time management skills and his dedication to the students' success.

What sets Sanzhar apart is his natural curiosity and eagerness to apply his theoretical knowledge to real-world problems. He actively sought opportunities to improve the course by suggesting new materials and approaches, which ultimately benefited both students and the overall course structure. His creativity and initiative have been valuable assets to me as an instructor, and I believe they will serve him well in any future academic or professional endeavor.

Sanzhar's commitment to excellence, his ability to collaborate effectively, and his passion for the field of data science make him a standout candidate for any graduate program or career in machine learning or data science. I have no doubt that he will continue to thrive and contribute meaningfully to the field. I wholeheartedly recommend Sanzhar Tokkozhin for any opportunities related to data science or machine learning and am confident that he will exceed expectations in any setting.

Sincerely,
Yury Sanochkin
Senior Lecturer, Faculty of Computer Science
Big Data and Information Retrieval School
HSE University
Email: ysanochkin@hse.ru